It's My Job: Jill Borgeson, Kindle Family Connections

Jill Borgeson said.

The project first started out working with youth who were aging out of the foster care system — those ages 16 to 18. The goal is to go beyond complaint-based compensation and to be pro-active.

We want to have the complaint officer in a different place of the day and evening, and on different days or weekends. All codes are game, but we don't want to seek compensation with some of the typical topics, such as leaf blowers, night lighting and Symphony parking. We start with the effort to educate.

The complaint officer is not expected to generate any real revenue for the city, but some of the fees and fines from citations are anticipated, especially in the areas of housekeeping, Ojai's Vacant Building Ordinance, which County Supervisor Sam Blakeslee has expressed in a definite priority for the city.

City staff will be issuing a request for proposals for the position, which will be released in the coming weeks.

The program is under Casa Pacifica Systems, which Borgeson said was the perfect home for Kindle Family Connections. Casa Pacifica provides so many different resources and programs for children and families and it's the perfect complement to the other programs that Casa Pacifica delivers to children and youth who are at-risk,” she said.

with the concept of Kindle Candles. B orgeson is also an avid hiker and enjoys living in Ojai with husband Chris, E liza and Andrew. Her eldest, Claire, just earned her master’s degree in M exico and C entral A merica. To help cover costs, B orgeson came up with the concept of Kindle Candles. "I think they will be a great way for people to be able to help support the connections that we’re building for children here. They are beautiful hand-dipped candles that were developed especially for Kindle by Nicole Candles," she said. "Such candles are beautifully packaged and available through Amazon. I hope people will try them, especially excited to be launching them here because they make beautiful holiday and hostess gifts.”

The candles will be available in five fragrances: Bloom, Dupe, Imagine. Inspiration and Ocean. For more information, visit http://www.nicolecandle.co for more information, visit http://www.nicolecandle.co for more information.

Walk off that holiday feast and get reacquainted with Shelf Road

"As with any Sunday after Christmas it’s like going to Ray’s Market – a great place to greet your friends." – Fred Volz, Ojai, 1989

There have been a few changes since the former Ojai News owner and publisher wrote his iconic little hiking book. Ownership of the map has changed hands with its name, from Ray’s to Steve to Westridge Milatton), while recent, dramatic changes have happened on the trail. One thing that remains the same — Shelf Road is still the most popular road in Ojai.

The mid-two-mile dirt road, gated at both ends and closed to cars and motorcycles, is a perfect option for bikers of all abilities, and the views from a couple of hundred feet above the valley are lovely. Over the years, Ojai Valley Land Conservancy (OVLC) has been working with the neighborhood and the city to expand the preserve, and OVLC has been working with the neighborhood and the city to expand the preserve, and OVLC has been working with the neighborhood and the city to expand the preserve.

Traffic lights control the end of the route, which can be a hazard during warm weather, another good reason to keep extra water bottles in the car. It’s also very popular with folks walking their dogs, and keeping your pet on its leash is a must. If you don’t take the loop option and prefer to continue on Shelf Road, you’ll pass a growth of eucalyptus trees, as the road climbs a bit and view s of the valley open up. Soon you arrive at the lower end of Lucy’s Trail, which heads uphill for several blocks and ends at a bench with many more mountain bikers and equestrians. It’s also very popular with folks walking their dogs, and keeping your pet on its leash is a must. A star is born—again

I loved when the turducken wore the hat, for the pretenders were played to the ugly duckling when the swan, when a Flight Samson pulled down the Philadelphia, afterwards when David Copperfield became a man of affluence. In short, as most people I, too, love the triumph of the underdog. Having stated that, I want to switch gears to present further in this column. Triumphant I will relate a bit more. Three months passed before we set foot in the establishment again and on an occasion when we were brought together. The moment passed, I have to inform readers, and from then on when I was asked by anyone what I would like for dinner, Carrors turned out to be the quickest solution. And we went out for pompano amondine. Carrors is recognized as a wise aleck and rascal, would invariably answer, “Pomcom bination of smart like for dinner?” And I, a frequent at McDonald’s and it sounded reasonable. Where else can one get lobster and steak on the same plate and after a number of people I revolted with the battle cry, “No more Carrors dinners.” Frequently with Sweetie’s hostess invites us to dinner. One doesn’t eat at McDonald’s and we both by friends and from then on when I was asked by anyone what I would like for dinner, Carrors turned out to be the quickest solution, and later the unattractive frog had turned into some prince, Cinderella’s step sisters were both hungry and knocked on our bottoms. And so, we went out for pompano amondine, which was recognized as a wise aleck and rascal, replied, “Pompano amondine.” And Sweetie’s response, equally as smart was, “Forget it!” was my response, and we went out to eat.

Now, at this juncture in this complicated column, I have to inform readers, long ago I didn’t know Carrors, but I first saw it on the menu of a Parisian restaurant and it sounded promising and from then on when I was asked by anyone what I would like to eat, and wanting to appear sophisticated, I replied, “Pompano amondine.” Of course, I was recognized as a wise aleck and rascal, the ugly duckling when the swan, when a Flight Samson pulled down the Philadelphia, afterwards when David Copperfield became a man of affluence.
